

Because of their habituation to humans and food attractants, grizzlies Betsy and Patti got into trouble on the North Fork last year, and had to be captured and hazed. Photo by Pat Cole

Have you seen these bears?

Posted May 19—In the hope of mitigating their increasing habituation to humans and food attractants, grizzlies Betsy and Patti were captured and hazed last fall by Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks grizzly-bear management specialist Tim Manley and his crew.

Named after Betsy Holycross and Patti Craig-Hart, the bears, 3 years old this year, have been seen around the North Fork again this spring.

If you have a problem with these bears or suspect they are about to get into trouble again, call Manley at (406) 751-4584 (office) or (406) 250-1265 (cell).

Craig-Hart documented the capture, release and hazing on her Web site, North Fork Tales, which includes photos and a YouTube video of the release.